RIP MY BROTHER

In 1957, the Harley-Davidson Sportster model motorcycle was introduced. This is the start of the great Harley-Davidson Sportster history. Known as the XL series and with many of the same characteristics as its K model ancestor. The Sportster is still being produced today, and it retains its status of being one of the world's most popular motorcycles.

HARLEY DAVIDSON K MODEL

The Sportster is a direct descendant of Harley's legendary but sometimes-overlooked Model K series. The middleweight K model was introduced in 1952, with a 45 cubic inch flathead engine, and a unit construction four-speed transmission that was contained inside the engine cases. Later models of the K series Harleys were equipped with 55 cubic-inch engines.

The K model was the first Harley model to sport a hand-clutch and a foot-gear shifter. One of the main advances of the K models was the hydraulic suspension systems on both wheels. The K models were the first civilian cycles made by Harley-Davidson that featured hydraulic front forks, and a swing-arm in the rear that contained two shock absorbers.

When the Sportster debuted, it closely resembled the K models in appearance, but the K model's 45 cubic-inch engine was replaced with a more powerful 54 cubic-inch, overhead-valve engine that was known as the ironhead motor because of the iron cylinder heads that were used.

In 1986 the ironhead engines were replaced with the new evolution style engine. The first "Evo" engines for Sportsters were available in 883 cc and 1,100 cc sizes.

HARLEY-DAVIDSON XL SERIES SPORTSTERS

What does XL mean on a Sportster? The term XL on a Sportster means Experimental Lightweight.

The dynamic new Sportster represented the start of a new era in American motorcycling. The model was created in part to provide some real competition to the British Triumphs, BSAs and Nortons that were becoming increasingly popular with American riders. The price of a brand new XL Sportster in 1957 was approximately $1,100. With its fresh and dynamic appearance, the Sportster became appealing to motorcycle consumers almost immediately. Not only was this cycle as sleek and exciting as the British imports, but it was more powerful, and it was a Harley-Davidson!

Sportsters made from 1957 through 1990 were outfitted with four-speed transmissions, while models made since 1991 have five-speed gearboxes. The earlier models that had the gear-shift lever on the right side were inspired by Harley-Davidson's impressive flat track racing history.

From 1969 to 1970, a major network TV show named "Then Came Bronson" was on the air. The program starred Michael Parks as a former newspaper reporter who traveled around on a 1969 XLH Sportster. The show can still be seen in reruns, and is available on DVD.

During the years that AMF owned H-D, from 1969 to 1981, the company produced a respectable lineup of Sportster models. There were detractors, however, who claimed that the overall quality of the AMF-era Harleys was less-than satisfactory.

Among the AMF-era Sportster models that were produced were the Bicentennial Edition in 1976, and the Confederate model from 1977. Designed to honor America's 200th birthday, the Bicentennial Edition bikes were basically regular Sportsters that had special patriotic decals affixed to the gas and oil tanks.

XLH, XLCH, and XLT models that featured metallic gray paint with decals that included the Confederate flag. Less than 400 of these largely unknown Sportster models were produced.

In 1972, the standard 900 cc engine was replaced with a 1,000 cc overhead-valve motor. 1975 brought about the government-mandated gearshifter switch to the left side, and 1979 was the last year that the kickstart-only XLCH model was produced. From 1977 to 1979, Harley produced the 1,000 cc XLCR Cafe Racer, and from 1979-1982 they made the XLS Roadster, with its 2" fork extension, sissy bar and highway pegs.

TWO BIKERS AT MARDI-GRAS

Two old bikers were walking down Bourbon St. during Mardi-Gras, when a woman yelled at them from a second story window of a "House of ill-repute"

She said to the bikers, "Come up here boys and I'll give you something you never had before".

The two old bikers didn't even look up. After a few steps the 1st Biker asked the 2nd Biker:
"Wonder what that could be"?

2nd Biker replied: "I don't know, Cancer maybe"?

COURT WATCH UPDATE, 08/10/2022, 7:30 PM

Case CF-2019-4935, Tulsa County – The defendant appeared in court today and entered a guilty plea to all charges of hitting & killing a motorcyclist in Tulsa in 2019. The victim's daughter was present & gave a very moving victim's impact statement. The defendant was recently returned to DOC custody to finish serving an 11-year sentence on unrelated charges. In this Tulsa County case the defendant was sentenced to 10 years in DOC custody, to be served concurrently with the 11-year sentence. She must serve 85% of this sentence before being eligible for parole. The trial date of 08/29/2022 has been vacated.

The victim's daughter provided the following statement to ABATE of Oklahoma, "I was able to give a victim's impact statement & speak directly to her. She did apologize to me several times when she was given the chance. I also want to thank each of you who devoted your time to be at the hearings every time. I cannot express enough how much it meant to have the support, not just for me but for the entire biker community!"

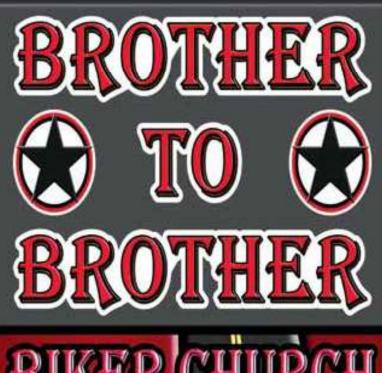

ABATE of Oklahoma's Court Watch Team would also like to extend our thanks to everyone who followed these cases and who lent their support: in person, attending the years of court hearings and in offering your thoughts and prayers that justice be served. We cannot reverse this tragedy, but we can continue to support the victims and their families when possible.

HIS HOUSE | HEBREWS 10:25

I don't believe it's ever been more important for believers to gather together and worship than it is today! For many this thing called "church" is not the place they want to be, and some have good reason. If you have been wronged in a church setting and it has caused you to separate vourself from Christ, then come home to Christ Jesus today. Maybe church just left a bad taste in your mouth - whatever the case, on behalf of the church I apologize for the wrongs that have been done to you and I ask you to forgive us of our rudeness, thoughtless deeds or stupidities you have suffered.

I really pray that you choose to forgive - I would hate for you to miss out on all the miracles that happen at His House! We come to His House to be filled with His Holy Spirit, receive healing inside and outside as His presence washes it all away. We listen to the word our pastor brings and somehow it seems to be just for us. We develop friendships and people pray for you when life gets tough. God has designed the church to be a place of refreshing that you may experience the things of God as you are faithful to attend His house. Good things take place at the church that will never happen anywhere else - but you have to be there to experience them. God's plan for your life will be revealed at His house - He has a chair with your name on it and He will help you find it. I know there's always an excuse to ditch church, but today I pray your heart is softened and you'll find the home that God has for you!
